

CONTENTS

PREFACE	vii
1. THINKING ABOUT THINKING ABOUT TEACHING How a philosophy of teaching develops and why it is important to have one	1
2. THE BIOLOGICAL BASIS OF LEARNING Learning as brain change, rather than brain use	11
3. LANGUAGE On the questionable utility of unexpressed ideas	23
4. TODAY'S FIRST-YEAR STUDENTS Culture, motivation and preparation	33
5. TEACHING AND PEDAGOGY How the way we teach affects the way students learn	51
6. THE CLASSROOM The classroom as dynamic arena—What students are really doing	83
7. WRITING AND OTHER TECHNOLOGIES Technology, old, and new, and as a means to an end	119
8. FINAL THOUGHTS Reflections and ruminations	137
APPENDIX Two sample assignment sheets	153
REFERENCES	155
ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY	161
INDEX	165